

WINTER ADVICE FROM TNR!

(Also some for “Summer”)

an incredibly timely brochure!

Times New Roman

TOP BOSTON SNOW SHOVELERS

Ryan

11 years old
38 snow/hr

“Ryan was really great, he made sure to not hit my dog.”
“Ryan missed a few spots, I nearly slipped.”

Ryan (Cartoon)

9 years old
99 cartoon snow/hr

“Ryan made me feel like a kid again.”
“Ryan uses a lot of dynamite but I didn’t mind. The dog went a bit nuts.”

Ryan (the Younger)

5 years old
7 snow/hr

“Ryan is really tryin.”
“Should’ve brought a bigger shovel. Amateur hour, am I right? Follow me @cartoonryan”

Ryan (the Elder)

82 years old
0 snow/hr

“Yelling at the snow doesn’t make it ‘go back to where it came from.’ Really disappointing.”

“Took a dinner break at 3 pm.”

SWIMMING TIPS

Swimming: without it, fish would be much easier to catch. But how do you do it? Here are a few tips!

- Shallow water is safer. Swallowing water as you swim will lower the depth of the body of water!
- Whales are very good swimmers. Emulate them by gaining 160 tons of body mass in preparation.
- Michael Phelps smoked pot. That could be a starting point? (Editor's Note: As a religious organization, TNR doesn't endorse smoking m*r*j**n*.)
- If you are a freshwater fish, don't swim in saltwater. If you're a saltwater fish, don't swim in freshwater. If you're a salmon, swim wherever the stream carries you, you beautiful bastard.
- Remember that the water is your friend. Do not shy away from its loving embrace.

HOW TO DROWN

1. Eat a big portion of potato salad
2. Swim out really far and expend a lot of energy
3. Just take a break
4. Stop swimming
5. Let the water consume you.

**The key to a good drown is to take someone else down with you, when the lifeguard swims out to help you make sure to grab on to their head and neck and really thrash around.**

WINTER DIET TIPS

Trying to keep that gorgeous beach bod'? Follow these tips to look your best even in the dreariest winter.

1. Work out in Marino. Then, when you inevitably catch COVID, you'll have gains and hearty meals all on Northeastern's dime!
2. Eat Yellow Snow. Contrary to popular belief, yellow snow is packed with protein and flavor!
3. Run to the Brigham Circle Stop and Shop, then leave when you realize they have no food left. Talk about intermittent fasting!
4. Live like a frat boy, only consuming weed and beer. Look good and pull females, brother.
5. Ask the mice in your apartment to share their crumbs with you. Friendship always wins.

BOSTON SNOW FORECAST

HOW TO MAKE YOUR FAKE TAN LOOK REAL

1. Be white. Only white people need to tan. How are you supposed to live up to the expectations of the beauty industry? They only depict women of color as sexy! Clearly, we are the disadvantaged. Convince your other white friends to get a tan as well. If everyone is tanned, then no one is tanned.
2. Find a tanning place operated by a white person. What can I say? Only white people know the logistics behind true tanning. Only white people truly understand what it feels like to be disadvantaged with job security, food security, and higher pay rates. We need someone behind the machine that understands us, so they can give us the perfect tan that suits us and our needs.
3. Start speaking with an accent. Alright ladies, this is where the hardship really begins. Are you seriously going to try to convince people your tan is real with a hill-billy accent? Try this: go to your local train station to meet foreigners. Ask them how they're doing. Say "Aloha!" every once in a while. Trust me, no one will be able to tell the difference between you and a Puerto Rican woman.
4. Join The Alliance of Fake Tanned Persons. If you followed the previous steps effectively, you now officially qualify as a person of color. You, in fact, have skin of a color that does not belong to you. Congrats! You are severely under-represented in the media and—hence—disadvantaged. No matter how sexy your husband says you look, that sometimes isn't enough. But don't fret! The Alliance of Fake Tanned Persons is here for you. Send us an email now at recruitment@allianceofftp.com to communicate your interest. Resume, cover letter, and picture required.

Hey! If you're interested in writing satire like this, or in standup comedy, comedic videos, or funny podcasts, check out Times New Roman, Northeastern's comedy club. Contact us through our website or our socials to get involved, complain to us about how we don't understand seasons, or just enjoy our content.

nutnr.com

neutnr

neutnr

Times New Roman